BONI COMING OVER
TO FIGHT A DUEL

Challenges New York Restaurateur Who Offered
Him Job as Waiter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—M. Martin, restaurateur, is taking lessons in fencing and practicing with a revolver in secret, his friends say, since he received a cablegram today from Count Boni de Castellane. Martin offered Boni a job as head waiter at a salary of $10,000. This is the reply:

"My friend, Count de Cusane will call upon you and demand reparation with arms for your insult."

"CASTELANE."

Martin says he thinks it is a joke and his tone implies that he hopes so. He has never heard of Count de Cusane. But the most improbable part of the challenge, according to Broadway gossip, is that the message was prepaid. Few think that Boni in the days of his wrecked finances could have done it.

COMRADE PRAISES
GENERAL SHERWOOD

His Election to Congress
From Ohio Gratifying to Soldiers.

To the Editor of The Washington Times:
Your portrait and personal sketch of Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, of Toledo, Ohio, published in your issue of the 18th instant, are very complimentary, but fully deserved. He was the colonel of my regiment, the One Hundred and Eleventh Ohio Infantry, organized at Toledo in the autumn of 1862. Forty-four years ago, he was acting as the adjutant of the regiment at Bowling Green, Ky. He was neat, handsome, courteous, patriotic, and efficient. He was my ideal of what a volunteer officer should be.

From first to last, he remained with the regiment, faithful in the discharge of his duty and sharing the hardships and dangers of his men. While other officers left the service, he continued steadfast to the muster out, being in command of the boys.

Without party or party machinery, without a "barrel to be tapped," and without a newspaper or a press bureau to boom his candidacy, he ran for Congress on the Independent Democratic ticket in a district overwhelmingly Republican, with the result of being elected by thirty-nine majority.

The "boys in blue," who stood with him in the hardships of Kentucky, East Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Middle Tennessee, and North Carolina, and who always found him worthy to be trusted, stood by him in the recent exciting campaign.

Honesty, integrity, patriotism, and supreme loyalty to the flag and the Government of the fathers were, in their estimation, sufficient ground for them to break away from all party alliances and give their hearty support to one of the "old boys," whose heart is always warm and true.

The motor car belonging to today's cup races of the Quaker City Club. Keeler was accompanied by Oliver Light and C. W. Berger, for the first fifteen miles acted as mechanic and repeatedly cautioned Keeler against making turns at reckless speed. Two laps before the start the motor car, and Keeler was alone at the time of the crash.

Keeler is said to have come from Lansing, Mich., but his home was in New York, where he is survived by a widow and one child. He was twenty-six years old.
